

Grading criteria

- Written assignments are to be written in correct English and according to the conventions for academic writing (e.g. layout, formatting, style and correct referencing) as specified on the Chicago Manual of Style website: <http://www.chicagomanualofstyle.org/home.html>-Attention:
- Make sure to properly execute and format your assignments. Any written assignment may receive a failing mark if name, date or page numbers are missing.
- The grading will depend on the depth of your argumentation. A clear reproduction of the major arguments of the given text will as a rule yield a satisfactory grade. If you are able to develop the argument further, or to challenge it in a good manner, then the grade will be higher.
